

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a lubricant container inside a microelectromechanical device package. The lubricant container contains selected lubricant that evaporates from the container and contact to a surface of the microelectromechanical device for lubricating the surface.